The principles of aircraft valuations and appraisals to be explored by experts in London

London, UK, January 29, 2018: Aeropodium is the organiser of a high-quality seminar about the principles of aircraft valuations and appraisals to be held on February 13, 2018 in London, UK.

This important event is organised in association with Jet Support Services, Inc. and expert speakers will contribute with their knowledge and experience. James Carroll, Brendan Lodge, Charles Rubinowicz and Louis Seno will represent JSSI with their expertise. Furthermore, Usman Ahmed of Aircore Aviation, Richard Berkemeier of the American Society of Appraisers, Mark Bisset of Clyde & Co, Alan Cunningham of DLA Piper, Brian Davey of the General Aviation Manufacturers Association, and Aoife O'Sullivan of The Air Law Firm will also participate as expert-speakers.

Panagiotis Panagopoulos, CEO and Founder of Aeropodium stated that "this seminar offers great value and a unique opportunity for the participants to enhance their knowledge and meet the experts during an event that has never taken place before".

The seminar agenda will cover themes such as the accreditation process and USPAP, the current state of the business aircraft market, the current state of the airline and rotorcraft segments, regulatory issues facing business and general aviation in the United States & Europe, an overview of the charter and fractional markets and their effect on aircraft values, the residual effect, the approach to value, effective report writing, and legal issues surrounding aircraft appraisals. All participants will receive a certificate of attendance.

Aeropodium has completed 140 projects in 26 countries since 2009 when it was founded by Panagiotis Panagopoulos who has 18 years of experience in the production of international aviation conferences and training seminars. It develops, markets and organizes aviation events worldwide following the market developments and meeting the demands of aviation professionals in all sectors of the industry.
